JAMES FARRIOR

JAMES FARRIOR, immigrant, born about 1706<sup>1</sup>; died Duplin County, North Carolina, about 1770<sup>2</sup>; married Margaret Bryan; died Duplin County, 1778<sup>3</sup>; said to have been a daughter of Joseph Bryan of Tyrol, Ireland.

According to tradition, James Farrior, a French Huguenot, came to eastern North Carolina when he was a boy. On the voyage to America he met Margaret Bryan, a girl, whom he married on reaching maturity.

James Farrior has not been located before he settled in Duplin County<sup>4</sup>. It is possible that he landed in

Mr. Kenan presented certificates from the Court of Duplin thereby recommending James Farrior, Fleet Cooper, and John Quinton to be exempt from paying public taxes for the future. Granted." Walter Clark, State Records of North Carolina, XII, 362. Men were exempt from paying taxes when they became too infirm to work. James Farrior was probably at least sixty years of age at the time.

<sup>2</sup>1770 is the period in which James Farrior died. He died between 1766 and 1778.

<sup>2</sup>Will of John Farris, Jr., Duplin County Will Book II, page 57. (Office of Clerk of Superior Court, Court House, Kenansville, North Carolina).

John Farrior, Jr., was elected surveyor of Duplin County, 1809. He served as a patroler, 1810<sup>1</sup>. He was a member of Captain John E. Hussey's Company, Second Regiment, War of 1812. This company was called into service in Wilmington, North Carolina, September 29, 1814<sup>2</sup>. He served as a Justice of the Duplin County Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, 1818-38<sup>3</sup>. He was a member of Saint John's Masonic Lodge in Kenansville. He represented Duplin County in the State House of Commons in 1829<sup>4</sup>.

Mr. Farrior was one of the founders of the Southern Convention of Universalists in Kenansville in 1827. This was the beginning of organized Universalism in North Carolina.

"Our earliest records tell us that the first message of Universalism was brought to Kenansville by Rev. J. Freeze and that on June 3, 1827, he secured the names of 56 endorsers of the faith. My great grandfather John Farrior was one of this group of men that dared to come forward in the face of the persecution of the time and they formed an organization known as the Southern Convention of Universalists. The names of these 56 men were printed in gold on white satin and several copies of the original constitution have been found and are in perfect condition today."<sup>5</sup>

JAMES FARRIOR

JAMES FARRIOR, (John, James), born near Hallsville, North Carolina, about 1788; died unmarried, Louisburg, North Carolina, November 3, 1835<sup>1</sup>.

James Farrior was graduated from the University of North Carolina with the A. B. degree in 1814<sup>2</sup>. He became a lawyer. For several years he practiced in Wayne County, North Carolina. He was State Solicitor pro tempore in 1818<sup>3</sup>. The Wayne County Court Minutes of 1828 note: "James Farrier nominated to be onch."<sup>4</sup> He practiced law in Smithfield, North Carolina, and later moved to Louisburg where he was living at the time of his death.

In 1820 James Farrior sent to John McLeod of Smithfield a challenge to fight a duel. McLeod had Farrior indicted. The challenge as presented in the State Supreme Court follows:

"Smithfield, W. C., Sept. 30, 1820.

"Mr. John M'Lood

"Sir:

"Since our last interview in which we talked over the differences between us, and in which you called on me to explain why I should say that I would as soon vote for Jim, the barber, as you... I say, since then I have seen General Bryan of this county, who informed me that you, in explanation of the cause of this difference between us, had said that it was likely owing to a very unpleasant request that you had made to me at the instance of your ward to forsake your house; and your reason for doing this was, as defeated lovers sometimes prove desperate, you thought there was some danger to be apprehended from me; and if I be the defeated lover, there really will be some danger to be apprehended and your words verified, but not in the sense you intended. Instead of my revenge being directed against an innocent lady in the exercise of her right, it shall be directed towards a man who had thus causelessly thrown a reproach upon the character of the innocent, in order to palliate his own improper conduct.

"You say your ward imagined to herself that I had a dirk and intended making an attack on her person: permit me to tell you that I do not believe your ward ever imagined any such thing, neither do I believe that she ever told you so. So this story about the dirk never existed anywhere else than in your own imagination for some cause best known to yourself; and remember he that carrieth a dirk in his imagination carrieth poison in his heart.

"I once cherished the hope that this storm of calumny, this spirit of evil reports which has so long raged between you, your family and myself, would ere this have ceased; but all hope is now lost of there ever being a revival of our former intimacy. The affairs as they now stand between us may be worse, but I will assure you that there is little probability of there being better. Since my memory my character has never suffered such a gross, unjustifiable and unprecentented attack. It may be credited by those who are unacquainted with me, but those who are acquainted with my former conduct, will give it but little credit; and if it is not credited by a solitary person, my feelings will not permit me to pass it over in silence and let it sink into the tomb of oblivion without revenge.

"I therefore ask of you to render that opportunity of redress which one gentleman is bound to render to another, whenever he thinks himself aggrieved; and in making this my request, you are not to presume that I acknowledge you a gentleman, for I do not consider you as such, neither do I believe you are known to the world in that character; yet for the purpose of redressing my wounded feelings, I am bound to ask you once for your lifetime to act the part of a gentleman in accepting this my invitation to leave the state, in respect to the peace of North-Carolina."

"JAS. FARRIER"

"N. B.

"This letter will be lodged in David Thompson's store for your reception, and if handed to you, the person handing of it will be unacquainted with its contents. The calls of my professional affairs prevent me from being in town for a few weeks. My friend, Doc White, who will call on you for an answer to this letter, will do me the favor of receiving any communication from you, yourself to me, during my absence."<sup>1</sup>

"The jury found the defendant guilty; a new trial was refused, and from the judgment pronounced the Defendant appealed."<sup>2</sup>

The Star and North Carolina Gazette of Raleigh reported on Thursday, November 26, 1935 on page three:

"DEED, In Louisburg, N. C., on the 3d inst. of Congestive Fever, James Farrier, Esq., Attorney At Law."

Mrs. Charles Buford (Lalyde Duffy) of New Bern, North Carolina, owns an oil portrait of James Farrior. The portrait, painted on mahogany, is believed to have been done by William Joseph Williams.

"Companies A and F, totaling 70 men, under command of Lieutenants Bostic, Morris, and Farrior, saw action near Hanover Junction, Va., on May 24, 1864. They were greatly outnumbered by the Union troops, but after a battle the enemy withdrew. After the skirmish, it was found that there were more dead and wounded of the enemy than the whole number of Confederates participating. General Bryan Grimes expressed his belief that this was one of the great fights of the war."<sup>1</sup>

Soon after the war, Stephen Farrior operated S. D. Farrior and Company, a merchantile business at Hallsville. He and his wife are buried in Golden Grove Cemetery in Kenansville.

An account of Henry Farrior's death follows:

"Yesterday's Wilmington Star says:

"Friends in Wilmington yesterday received the sad intelligence that Mr. Henry Farrior, a well known and greatly beloved citizen of Duplin had passed away early in the day at his home in Warsaw after an illness of several weeks.

"He was for many years connected with a large wholesale shoe business and traveled throughout this section.

"He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Kenansville and one of its most devoted members. He was deeply interested in education and had served for a long period as a member of the board of trustees of the James Sprunt Institute at Kenansville....."<sup>1</sup>
